Sociology: Studying People, Society, & Cultures

Classes for Fall 2016

SOCY 110, Introduction to Sociology (3), multiple sections: please see the registration schedule for section days and times. Look for Online options too. SOCY 110 helps you understand everything from society’s biggest problems to your individual interactions, all within a social context. Approved for Core Curriculum credit in Social and Behavioral Sciences or U. S. Perspectives.

SOCY 121, Understanding Cultures (3), multiple sections: please see the registration schedule for section days and times. SOCY 121 applies cultural anthropology perspectives to understand cultural diversity around the world. Approved for Core Curriculum credit in Social and Behavioral Sciences or Global Perspectives. (Cannot be taken for credit if you already have credit for ANTH 121.)

SOCY 210, Social Problems (3), two sections: SOCY 210-01, Steve McGlamery, MWF 9:00-9:50 & SOCY 210-02, Steve McGlamery, MWF 10:00-10:50 Job insecurity, a “broken” educational system, health care woes: What are the causes? The consequences? And what kinds of action can we take in addressing these pressing social problems? In this class we will examine these issues and more as we take a sociological look at contemporary social problems.

SOCY 250, Social Inequality (3), two sections: SOCY 250-01, Instructor TBA, MWF 1:00-1:50, & SOCY 250-02, Instructor TBA, MWF 2:00-2:50 Did you know that the richest one percent of U.S. households owns more than the combined wealth of the bottom 90%? That the wages of professional women are just 77% of those of professional men? And that African Americans and Latinos are roughly three times as likely to live in poverty as whites? In this class we will expose these and other inequalities and examine the social forces that create, maintain, and change them.

SOCY 331, Race and Ethnic Relations (3), Steve McGlamery, MWF 1:00-1:50 Race and ethnicity are a large part of our identities, yet White people in the US infrequently recognize that they have a “race.” Race, ethnicity, social class, gender, etc. intersect and play a large role in everyday interaction. Sociology of race and ethnicity studies how identities matter and influence social outcomes and why some of us are very aware of our racial and cultural backgrounds and others are not.

SOCY 341, Sociology of Health & Medicine (3), Dr. Allison Wisecup, MWF 11:00-11:50 Are you SICK? The sociology of health and illness explores the ever changing landscape of what it means to be healthy or ill. We will discuss the process by which conditions become illnesses. We will also examine the social foundations for health and illness and discuss how structural features of society give rise to health inequalities.

SOCY 360-01, Sociological Theory (3), Dr. Elizabeth Lyman, MWF 10:00-10:50 McDonald’s, fashion, social networking, and car shopping: sociological theory comes to life in this course covering both classical and contemporary theory. Come and explore the relationships between theory and our everyday lives.

SOCY 365, Society and the Individual (3), Dr. Joanna Hunter, TR 2:00-3:15 Why are you attracted to certain people and not others? Why do people go along with the crowd even when they know they shouldn’t? Are women really less aggressive than men? Why are we so influenced by others? This class takes a sociological look at social psychology and uses a variety of lectures, class exercises, and other activities to explore these and other questions related to the ways that social interaction affects individual attitudes and behaviors. (Note: formerly SOCY 265 – cannot be taken if you completed SOCY 265.)

SOCY 380, Introduction to Social Research Methods (3), two sections: SOCY 380-01, Dr. Allison Wisecup, MWF 2:00-2:50 & SOCY 380-02, Dr. Allison Wisecup, MWF 4:00-4:50 Looking for valuable portable skills to launch your career? Introduction to Social Research Methods provides an introduction to quantitative and qualitative research methods used in various fields including the areas of education, criminal justice, business, non-profit, and government. In addition to learning the tools of the trade, students will be exposed to a worldwide leading software program, SPSS, gain valuable experience in writing a research proposal, and gain experience working with ICPSR, an assemblage of social and political research data.

SOCY 443, Deviance (3), Dr. Joanna Hunter, TR 11:00-12:15 "Why be normal?" some like to ask. We’ve all been deviant now and then, for better or worse. Why do people step outside the boundaries and deviate? From criminals in the streets and criminals in the suites… to drug abusers and sexual deviants… to simply not fitting in, we’ll look at how and why people stray from conformity.

SOCY 444, Juvenile Delinquency (3), two sections: SOCY 444-01, Dr. Roby Page, MWF 11:00-11:50, & SOCY 444-02, Dr. Roby Page, MWF 1:00-1:50 Is juvenile delinquency on the rise? What causes delinquency? What can be done about it? We’ll look at such pressing concerns as gangs, drugs, bullying, and shootings. And we’ll examine the persistent question of how juveniles should be treated by the justice system.

SOCY 497, Senior Seminar in Sociology (3), two sections: SOCY 497-01, Dr. Amy Sorensen, TR 9:30-10:45, & SOCY 497-02, Dr. Amy Sorensen, TR 11:00-12:15 The capstone experience for sociology majors. As you transition to becoming a professional Sociologist, students learn to market their skills, explore opportunities, and prepare for entry into the workplace or graduate school.

SOCY 499*, Internship (3-12). Please see Dr. Beth Lyman, Internship Coordinator, to discuss opportunities to fulfill the internship requirement. Also please review the Sociology Internship Manual on the Sociology web site, and view internship opportunities at http://www.radford.edu/content/chbs/home/sociology/about/internships.html.

THE SOCIOLOGY MAJOR AND MINOR

The Department of Sociology promotes a challenging atmosphere in which students are encouraged to recognize, understand, and think critically about social processes, issues, and cultural diversity. Through rigorous coursework, the program teaches students how to gather, analyze and interpret qualitative and quantitative data. Through research-in-service and internships students learn how to apply their knowledge and skills to problems and needs in businesses, organizations, and communities. A central part of our mission is to provide opportunities for independent student research as well as faculty and student collaborative research. We teach from the philosophy that active engagement in real-world research enhances employment opportunities and opens doors to graduate school. The department engages in sound career planning and preparation with each major.
