

JOIN OUR TEAM!

The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders at Radford University seeks to expand and develop new areas of clinical research to enhance our programs. We invite applications and nominations for two full-time tenure-track positions at the rank of Instructor/Assistant Professor. The required areas of clinical research expertise are motor speech disorders, fluency disorders, voice and resonance disorders, and/or swallowing. The selected candidates will pioneer the creation of a new clinical practice in their area of expertise with collaborating partners. These practices will serve as a catalyst for the new emphasis on advanced clinical practice and research. These are nine-month appointments beginning August 2023 with possible summer funding available.

Required Qualifications

Candidates must have an earned doctoral degree or ABD in speech-language pathology or related area, qualifications requisite for Virginia licensure in Speech-Language Pathology, and professional certification (CCC-SLP) through the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA). Applicants who are ABD and meet the requirements for licensure and certification must have their PhD conferred by May 2024. Individuals who are ABD will be hired at a rank of instructor. Responsibilities include teaching undergraduate and graduate coursework, supervising in the Radford University Speech-Language-Hearing Clinic, establishing or continuing a line of research in specialty area, student advising, and University service.

Competitive compensation

Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. In addition, the position will be provided with a reduced teaching load during the first year of employment to support the development of a research program. Relocation funds are also available.

Application Requirements

Candidates must submit a letter of application, a current curriculum vita, and contact information (names, addresses, and phone numbers) for three professional references. The successful candidate will also be required to provide official transcripts. Review of applications will begin immediately and the position will remain open until filled. Questions regarding the position should be directed to Dr. Lauren

Flora, Chair of the Search Committee at lflora2@radford.edu. Applicants must apply online at <https://jobs.radford.edu/postings/12225>. Paper submissions will not be accepted.
