Winter Break

Adventures

Kaitlyn Spring

My family and I traveled to Hawaii and went on a cruise around the islands during New Years. We went to Honolulu, Kona, Hilo, Maui, and Kauai. We went on a tour of Volcano National Park and saw lava rock sites, waterfalls, and active volcano sites. We went to the Pearl Harbor Memorial Site, swam in Waikiki beach, went hiking, and ate a lot of different seafood!

Vanessa Mauroy

My mom and I went to Antigua, Guatemala for Christmas. Antigua is a little city about an hour outside of Guatemala City. We ate lots of good food, people watched in the main square, and rode horses up a volcano where I warmed a marshmallow with hot air escaping from the volcano. Also, we learned how chocolate is made and made our own chocolate bars, took a walking tour discussing the history of Guatemala and the city of Antigua, and visited lake Atitlán and 3 surrounding villages, including a village that has become a co-op for women who work to preserve the Mayan culture. It was so much fun to be there to experience how another celebrates Christmas (hint: LOTS of fireworks). We did a lot and still managed to get some rest. After all, it was a vacation!

Heather Brockwell

Every year my dad and I go on a trip to go Christmas shopping, and Williamsburg is our favorite spot. We make it a point to do something special each time to spend some one-on-one time together, which is usually going out to a nice restaurant. This year we ate at a tavern in Colonial Williamsburg and explored the colonial strip before knocking out some shopping. It's a tradition we plan to keep forever, even when he's old and I have to push him in his wheelchair (as he reminds me every year). These are pictures from the past few years.

Macey VanSavage

Over break I spent a week in Scandinavia. Most of my time was in Gothenburg, Sweden, but I was also lucky enough to visit Oslo, Norway and Copenhagen, Denmark. It was my first time in Europe so I was thriving with my best friend that I grew up with. She was in Sweden on assignment for work so she took me to all her favorite places which resulted in some really cool sights and a ton of great food. An experience I'll never forget!

Syndi Pennington

My sister and I visited the Roastery in Chicago.

At 5 stories tall, It's currently the largest Starbucks in the world! :) I enjoyed all the beautiful designs from Starbucks all over the world and the coffee kept me warm from the cold!
