Spring 2023
COMMENCEMENT

ONE HUNDRED TENTH SESSION

BRET DANILOWICZ, PH.D.
President
Founded by the Virginia General Assembly in the spring of 1910, the State Normal and Industrial School for Women at Radford grew out of an effort to prepare more teachers for Virginia public schools. John Preston McConnell, Ph.D., was appointed president in October 2011.

Founders Hall, the first building, was dedicated on Aug. 9, 1913, just ahead of the school’s fall session. In 1913, the school colors of purple and gray were chosen, and an alma mater was written. The Student Government Association was established in 1914. In 1924, the school’s name became State Teachers College; its first Bachelor of Science degrees were awarded in 1921.

David W. Peters, Ph.D., became president in 1938. Radford came through the Great Depression relatively unscathed; in fact, the campus benefited from federal programs designed to bolster the economy. Improvements were made to existing buildings, and a dining hall was built.

World War II caused disruptions on campus, with many faculty members serving in the armed forces.

In 1943, the school merged with Virginia Polytechnic Institute (VPI) as part of a statewide effort to consolidate higher education institutions. As the Women’s Division of VPI, Radford students had the opportunity to pursue the same programs available to men, and duplicate courses were eliminated between the two schools.

After the war years, funds became available for new construction and renovation. In 1948, the school began to expand outside the stone wall surrounding the campus. Charles Knox Martin Jr., Ph.D., became Radford’s third president in 1952. Radford grew and prospered throughout the 1950s with many additions, including Peters Hall and Pocahontas Hall.

As the 1960s began, the “marriage” with VPI was dissolved. Students at the now-autonomous Radford College pushed for more freedoms, as did students at schools across the United States. The period culminated in the undergraduate admission of men, beginning in the summer of 1972.

Also in 1972, Donald N. Dedmon, Ph.D., took office as Radford’s fourth president. During Dedmon’s administration, Radford College grew to become a comprehensive coeducational institution. In 1979, the General Assembly granted Radford university status, resulting in the school’s fifth name change.

In the 1970s, Radford adopted the nickname “Highlanders” for the athletic teams to celebrate Southwest Virginia’s Scottish heritage. School colors were changed to the tartan plaid colors of red, white, blue and green. The school newspaper was renamed The Tartan. The yearbook remained The Beehive.

The campus continued evolving with the construction of the Dedmon Center, a state-of-the-art sports complex. The location of the Dedmon Center was also a change for the campus, as new properties adjacent to the New River were acquired from the railroad.

Douglas Covington, Ph.D., was named the fifth president and took office in June 1995. Radford grew with the completion of Martin, Cook and Waldron Halls, Cupp Stadium and the most visible symbol of Covington’s legacy – the Douglas and Beatrice Covington Center for Visual and Performing Arts.

Penelope W. Kyle, J.D., became the university’s sixth president in 2005. During Kyle’s tenure, academic programs and the campus continued to expand. The first doctoral program was established.

The university broke ground for a new home for the College of Business and Economics, later named Kyle Hall, which opened in the fall of 2012. In 2014, Radford opened the 110,000-square-foot Student Recreation and Wellness Center and, two years later, the Center for the Sciences. It features teaching and research laboratories, the Museum of the Earth Sciences and the Radford University Planetarium.

The seventh president of Radford University, Brian O. Hemphill, Ph.D., took office in 2016. Soon after, a College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences building opened. The state-of-the-art space, later named Hemphill Hall, features a TV studio, forensic laboratory and Emergency Management Center.

In 2017, the university launched IMPACT, a competency-based program targeting the adult learner population. Radford was the first public university in Virginia to launch such a program.

Radford University announced in 2017 the naming of the Artis College of Science and Technology due to the generosity of Nancy E. Artis ’73 and H. Pat Artis, Ph.D. In fall 2018, Radford University announced the naming of the Davis College of Business and Economics due to the generosity of Sandra C. and William C. Davis.

Jefferson College of Health Sciences joined the Radford University family in 2019, partnering with Carilion Clinic to become Radford University Carilion (RUC). RUC boasts a faculty of practicing clinicians who teach students to care for patients, conduct research and manage healthcare organizations.

In February 2020, Reed and Curie Halls reopened after extensive renovations, unveiling a new presence as a sophisticated science complex. In May 2021, the Artis Center for Adaptive Innovation and Creativity broke ground. The year also saw construction begin on The Highlander, an upscale hotel and conference center adjacent to campus.

In July 2022, the university welcomed its eighth president, Bret Danilowicz, Ph.D. Danilowicz emphasizes the “four P’s” – people, purpose, place, pride – and is committed to both amplifying Radford’s attractions as an education destination and underscoring its importance to the community and region.

For the first time, in 2022, Radford University was categorized by the Carnegie Commission as a doctoral/professional university; between the main campus and RUC, Radford currently offers six doctoral degrees. With its new national profile, the university eagerly faces the challenges and opportunities of the future.
The Seal

The official seal was adopted by the first Board of Trustees (later renamed Board of Visitors) and has remained a symbol of Radford University. The beehive represents the busy activity of learning.

Gonfalons

Gonfalons are ceremonial flags or banners suspended from a crossbar. The use of ceremonial banners dates back to the 1500s. Italian towns, for example, each have a gonfalon, which is the official emblem of the town, showing its coat of arms. Gonfalons have been adopted in many universities around the world as college or institutional insignias.

Hooding Colors

The hooding tradition is the most distinctive feature of American academic regalia. The gown is usually black and hoods are traditionally black on the outside, lined with a university’s colors (for us, Radford Red), and trimmed with the color representing the degree. The color of the trim of the hoods that our candidates now carry reflects their degrees. The hood is trimmed in the following colors:

- Apricot . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Doctor of Nursing Practice
- Teal . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Doctor of Physical Therapy
- Blue Flame . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Doctor of Occupational Therapy
- Sage . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Doctor of Health Science
- Papal Gold . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Doctor of Psychology
- Light Blue . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Doctor of Education
- Light Blue . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Educational Specialist
- Blue Flame . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Master of Occupational Therapy
- Brown . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Master of Fine Arts
- Drab . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Master of Business Administration
- White . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Master of Arts
- Golden Yellow . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Master of Science
- Citron . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Master of Social Work
- Apricot . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Master of Science in Nursing
- Peacock Blue . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Master of Healthcare Administration

The Mace

Maces were war clubs used during the Middle Ages as weapons of last resort by military officers. The mace later became a traditional symbol of protection and evolved into use as a longer walking stick. Within the university, the mace was adopted as a symbol of the power of the academic quest for truth and wisdom. It was carried in academic processions not only to bring authority to ceremonial occasions, but also to emphasize the unity and aspirations of the collegial community.

Radford University’s mace is wooden, made of turned walnut salvaged from Radford’s first building, Founders Hall. Originally called the Administration Building, construction began in 1911 and the structure was razed in 1968 to make room for more residence hall space.

The Presidential Medallion

The presidential medallion and chain of office symbolize the authority vested in the office of the president by the Radford University Board of Visitors. Yet another academic tradition that originated from medieval regalia, the display of the heavy chain symbolizes the weight of responsibility for the wearer, strength in unity and strong communication.
One of the nation’s leaders in injury reduction, Tesla executive Laurie Shelby ’83, will deliver the keynote address at Radford University’s 110th Spring Commencement.

“Laurie represents an excellent example of someone who has made the most of a Radford education,” President Bret Danilowicz said. “In addition to her achievements at Tesla, Laurie has been an advocate for women to pursue STEM-related fields and has been active in sharing her professional experiences with students at our university. We look forward to hearing her inspirational message at this spring’s commencement ceremonies.”

Shelby is a human and organizational performance expert known for her “new view” thinking to drive improvements. Since 2017, she has served as the vice president of environmental, health and safety (EHS), sustainability and security at Tesla Inc. She leads worldwide EHS, sustainability and security for over 130,000 employees in the automotive, energy, and sales and service delivery operations.

Previously, she was the EHS vice president for Alcoa Inc., where she led global environmental health and safety across mining, refining, smelting and rolling operations. Prior roles at Alcoa included EHS director for United States primary aluminum operations and EHS global audit manager.

Shelby graduated with a bachelor’s degree in chemistry from Radford University. She earned her master’s degree in industrial hygiene/biomedical engineering from Virginia Commonwealth University/Medical College of Virginia. She also has credentials as a Certified Safety Professional and Certified Industrial Hygienist.

Laurie and her husband live in Austin, Texas, and are both native Virginians. They have two daughters who are also helping change the world.
Dear Graduates,

We are delighted to celebrate your graduation from Radford University! When your journey to a degree began here, we knew it would be successful. Now you are poised to continue the legacy of successful lives and careers launched by earning a Radford University degree.

No matter which pathway you took, whether in-person or online, at our main campus or Radford University Carilion, or through partner centers in Roanoke and Abingdon, graduating from Radford University is an exceptional achievement.

On behalf of the faculty and staff, we are proud of your accomplishments. Our confidence in you will remain strong as you embrace opportunities and overcome challenges in the future.

Your Highlander Family wishes you the best of success in all future endeavors!

Tartan Proud,

* ALMA MATER
Music and lyrics by Florence Campbell Baird
Led by Jamori Harris, Radford University Singers

Hail, all hail to our Alma Mater, Bare our heads, let the welkin ring.
Here’s our hearts and our fond allegiance, Honors to you we bring.
Praise your broad and your lofty aims, Your purpose never fail ...
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater, Hail, all hail.

Hail, all hail to the Radford Spirit,
Give three cheers and then one cheer more.
Let the praise of our Alma Mater Echo from shore to shore.
Radford’s ours and our loyalty Will never, never fail ...
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater, Hail, all hail.

Overseen by the College of Graduate Studies and Research, the Graduate Assistant Distinction Program and Excellence Award provides graduate assistantship holders (graduate assistants, graduate teaching assistants and graduate teaching fellows) with additional opportunities for training and recognition. Successful completion of the Distinction Program is a notable achievement that demonstrates a commitment to growth in several areas, including academic excellence, diversity and inclusion, wellness, professional development and the scholarship of teaching and learning. Only those who complete the Distinction Program are eligible for the Excellence Award, which is competitively bestowed to one graduate student in each assistantship category.

The College of Graduate Studies and Research addresses the needs of both working students and full-time scholars by offering challenging and enriching learning opportunities through classes offered on campus, on weekends, in the evenings and online. The college is committed to providing students and faculty with exceptional resources and opportunities in academics, research and scholarship and to promoting innovation, professional development, applied learning and the betterment of society.

The College of Graduate Studies and Research at Radford University empowers students and faculty to prosper both intellectually and professionally, as well as envision, advance, pursue and accomplish professional learning goals and innovative and ethical scholarly engagement.

Graduate students at Radford University are enrolled in a wide range of programs, from the traditional arts and sciences to education to the applied health sciences, but all of them belong to the same university-wide community of knowledge. All programs are structured in a way that enables students to achieve their degrees and certificates in a timely and efficient manner.

The Artis College of Science and Technology prepares students to become successful professionals in a culturally diverse global economy that daily grows technically and scientifically more complex. Economic competitiveness and global environmental issues inspire an intense focus on science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM), to which the Artis College and its faculty are responding.

The Artis College is home to seven departments and a school focused on teaching and learning in STEM disciplines: Anthropological Sciences; Biology; Chemistry; Computing and Information Sciences; Geology; Geospatial Science; Mathematics and Statistics; and Physics. The Artis College is also home to the Pre-Health Advisory Committee, which provides guidance to students seeking careers in health-related fields, such as dentistry, medicine, optometry, pharmacy, physical therapy and veterinary medicine.

Science and technology programs benefit from cutting-edge facilities that include labs dedicated to UAVs, geohazards and unmanned research; geology makers; tree ring analysis; GIS; virtual reality; and cybersecurity, as well as a renovated greenhouse and dedicated housing for the school’s scanning tunnel microscope.

Artis College students and faculty take their research into the field in the Amazonian rainforest, on glaciers in Patagonia and during a biennial Alaska expedition to study ice depth and climate change. Locally, students inventory native and endangered flora and fauna. They also study and work to preserve and reclaim sensitive ecosystems by sharing their knowledge of the natural world as researchers and teachers.

The College of Education and Human Development offers more than 30 undergraduate and graduate programs that focus on serving others by developing the capacity of individuals and communities. All programs are nationally accredited. Candidates work with faculty in field-based programs and advanced technologies as they prepare to take their place in communities as highly skilled human service professionals.

The College of Education and Human Development’s academic departments focus on developing responsive and engaged professionals who meet the real needs of people and communities.

The School of Teacher Education and Leadership features strong partnerships with public schools. Its diverse programs prepare teachers and administrators to serve children from birth through grade 12. The Department of Health and Human Performance provides equitable opportunities for all individuals to develop skills, knowledge and attitudes to maintain optimal levels of lifelong personal health and physical activity. The Department of Recreation, Parks and Tourism academically engages students through diverse learning opportunities with an emphasis on experiential learning. The Counselor Education program offers a unique blend of courses designed to provide skills and knowledge necessary for becoming a knowledgeable, thoughtful, skillful and caring counselor.

The college’s Doctor of Education program prepares new generations of executive-level leaders in education with the scholarship and leadership skills to identify and solve challenging problems associated with educational organizations and their surrounding local communities.

The College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences develops students’ skill sets in oral and written communication, critical thinking, creative problem solving and collaboration with others that serve students well throughout their academic and professional careers, as well as in their personal lives as productive citizens. Students engage in experiential learning activities and internships that give them an opportunity to serve their communities while preparing them for jobs after graduation.

The diverse academic portfolio of the College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences includes the School of Communication, Interdisciplinary Studies, the Army ROTC program and the departments of Criminal Justice; English; Foreign Languages and Literatures; History; Philosophy and Religious Studies; Political Science; Psychology; and Sociology.

Through intense coursework and applied teaching methods, the College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences serves the region, the Commonwealth of Virginia, the nation and the world by educating students through a rigorous liberal arts education that prepares them for a diverse array of careers.

The College of Visual and Performing Arts (CVPA) is home to the departments of Art, Dance, Design, Music and Theatre and Cinema. CVPA prepares students to engage their ever-changing world with an understanding of the interpretive, imaginative and impactful nature of art. In and out of the classroom, students explore technique, theory, critical analysis and creative processes. Respected and accomplished faculty challenge students to develop and expand their abilities while visiting artists enrich their educations. The college plays a major role in the cultural life of the community at large by offering a rich blend of performances and exhibitions, coordinating workshops and master classes and directing residencies throughout the region and beyond. Students and faculty work individually and collectively to embrace the future, solve problems, inspire community and make meaning from and for a complex world.

Accolades for CVPA come from far and wide, touching each of its academic programs. Award-winning faculty and students in the Department of Art are frequently recognized through professional organizations such as the American Advertising Federation. Dance students perform and teach at international festivals, and faculty bring internationally recognized artists to classrooms for a robust and diverse educational experience. Students and alumni from the Department of Design have been profiled in international design publications like Metropolis Magazine, which recently named two graduates among the Top 100 designers in the country. Faculty and students in the Department of Music perform in prestigious national and international venues, such as Carnegie Hall in New York City and the Royal Irish Academy of Music in Dublin, Ireland. In addition to bringing award-winning plays to campus, the Department of Theatre and Cinema works with a variety of organizations to present unique performances to audiences from the campus, community and region. The College of Visual and Performing Arts gives its students the tools and experiences necessary to thrive both professionally and personally.

The Davis College of Business and Economics provides an active learning environment that develops responsible business professionals who collaborate to compete successfully in the global economy.

Accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB), the Davis College provides students opportunities to interact with entrepreneurs, accountants, investors, managers and marketing professionals from across the country and the world.

Students in the Davis College benefit from advanced educational technology and robust financial research resources. The live trading room in Kyle Hall simulates a fully functional financial operations center, offering students a valuable hands-on learning experience.

Within the Davis College, there are four departments: Accounting, Finance and Business Law; Economics; Management; and Marketing. The Davis College also offers a Master of Business Administration (MBA).

The MBA program provides a broad-based, cross-functional education in core business areas with target electives in analytics and innovation designed to prepare students for advanced leadership roles in private and public sectors of the global economy.

As one of the largest academic entities at Radford University, with learning locations in Radford and Roanoke, the School of Nursing (SON) continues to grow – in the number of students, faculty, programs and, ultimately, patients impacted in the region and across the nation. The SON continues to evolve its educational programs in response to healthcare needs, delivery mechanisms and technology advancements.

Students have the opportunity to learn on the main campus in Radford, at Radford University Carilion in Roanoke or at the Roanoke Higher Education Center in Roanoke. All three locations offer students the opportunity to practice their skills in state-of-the-art laboratories and classrooms, where they study innovative techniques in caring for the full spectrum of patients.

Radford University’s nursing programs have a rich history of preparing students to become vital, confident, highly skilled professionals on the fast-paced front lines of the healthcare industry. Graduates work every day across the region, the Commonwealth of Virginia and beyond to improve and maintain the good health of our families, friends and neighbors.

Waldron College of Health and Human Services prepares students to become competent, ethical practitioners and caring healthcare professionals. Waldron College’s faculty establishes enduring relationships with its students through collaborative projects, interprofessional activities and a challenging curriculum in a comprehensive and technologically sophisticated educational environment.

To prepare for practice and gain valuable field and clinical experiences, Waldron College students work with patients and clients from across the region in community service agencies, hospitals, schools and clinics, while contributing current perspectives, knowledge and skills that enhance care. The Waldron College offers advanced practice degrees, such as doctoral programs in health sciences, physical therapy and occupational therapy and master’s degrees in communication sciences and disorders, occupational therapy, physician assistant studies, health sciences, healthcare administration and social work. The Waldron College also offers bachelor’s degrees in emergency services, respiratory therapy, public health, health sciences, healthcare administration, communication sciences and disorders and social work, as well as an associate degree in occupational therapy assistant.

Waldron College departments, located on the main campus, Radford University Carilion and the Roanoke Higher Education Center, successfully prepare healthcare practitioners and providers at all levels for certification and licensure. The high first-time pass rate on their disciplines’ national certification tests and excellent employment rates among graduates reflect their programs’ rigor and solid grounding in patient care and service.

Bret Danilowicz, Ph.D., began serving as president of Radford University on July 1, 2022. A strong advocate of shared governance and transparency, Danilowicz brings 22 years of higher education leadership experience to the presidency.

As provost and vice president for academic affairs at Florida Atlantic University, Danilowicz implemented incentive-based budgeting, coordinated a nation-leading improvement in graduation rates, established a public forum for civil discourse and developed and implemented strategies for advancement towards R1 reclassification.

Before joining Florida Atlantic University, he served as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Oklahoma State University. There, he created a shared governance strategic planning and budgeting process, diversified college and departmental leadership and established a collegewide focus on diversity and inclusion while always exceeding fundraising goals. While dean, he co-authored “Organizing Academic Colleges,” which uses models and case studies to describe how to successfully navigate administrative reorganizations.

Previously, he was associate dean, then dean, of the College of Science and Technology at Georgia Southern University. He added engineering programs, thereby disrupting a longstanding state monopoly held by Georgia Tech, greatly expanded undergraduate research opportunities, and initiated the university’s nationally recognized sustainability efforts.

Danilowicz attained a B.S. in biology from Utica College of Syracuse University. He went on to earn a Ph.D. in zoology from Duke University, an M.A. in education leadership and management from Open University, and finally, an MBA from Georgia Southern University. His administrative journey started as associate dean of science at University College Dublin, Ireland, with a focus on student success.

Danilowicz’s wife, Kay, is an experienced pediatric speech-language pathologist and has worked extensively with early intervention and school-aged children. The Danilowicz’s are the proud parents of Torin, Brynn, Teagan, and Cullen and are active in the communities where they live. They co-trained a therapy dog and served as a pet therapy team at universities and in healthcare settings. They have built sets, worked backstage and performed onstage in local theatre, coached soccer and served on nonprofit and educational boards. When not at work or with the community, the Danilowicz’s enjoy exploring the outdoors, riding their horses and spoiling their dogs, Bainne and Koda.
