

Roommate Groups

1. If you know with whom you wish to group, talk to them to see if they have already created a group. If they have, you will want to join their group, if they have not, go ahead and create a group by selecting:

3. Search for Roommates by Profiles will help you search based on answers to profile/lifestyle questions. The more questions you include in the results, the narrower your results will be. We recommend only answering those that are most important to you and leave the rest set to

"any".

Roommate Search By Profiles

Personal Profile/Lifestyle

Do you smoke cigarettes or vape?

How would you describe your cleaning habits?

Are you comfortable living with someone who has an approved animal?

I consider myself an ally to the LGBTQ+ community and am comfortable residing with someone who identifies as LGBTQ+:

I consider myself:

4. Suggested Roommates displays a list of potential roommates whose answers to the lifestyle questions are similar to yours. The higher the percentage, the more questions you answered the same. You can view their profile to learn more about them, send a message & provide them with your contact information if you would like, and you can invite them to join your group. We strongly recommend taking the time to communicate with potential roommates before inviting them or accepting an invitation for a roommate group. If your friend created a group, select the Join Group link to request to join the group. You will need the group name to search for and request to join the group.
